

Contributors

Nikolaos A. Chrissidis (chrissidis1@southernct.edu) is Associate Professor of History at Southern Connecticut State University. He has authored articles on the cultural and religious history of Russia and on Greek-Russian contacts. His current project is a monograph on education in 17th-century Russia.

Robert O. Crummey (crummey@urcad.org) is Emeritus Professor of History at the University of California, Davis. His publications include studies on Old Believer history and culture; the boyar elite in the 17th century; and the historical development of Muscovy in comparative perspective.

Michael David-Fox (md672@georgetown.edu) is Associate Professor, Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service and Department of History, Georgetown University and a founding editor of Kritika. He is author of the forthcoming book Showcasing the Great Experiment: Cultural Diplomacy and Western Visitors to the Soviet Union, 1921–1941.

Andrey V. Ivanov (andrey.ivanov@yale.edu) is a Ph.D. Candidate in the Department of History at Yale University. His previous publications include journal articles on the Treaty of Nerchinsk (1689) and the Counter-Reformation polemic in 16th-century Muscovy. He is currently writing a dissertation on the 18th-century Russian church reform.

Nancy Shields Kollmann, William H. Bonsall Professor in History at Stanford University (kollmann@stanford.edu), has published Kinship and Politics: The Making of the Muscovite Political System, 1345–1547 (1987) and By Honor Bound: State and Society in Early Modern Russia (1999).

Jason Lavery (jason.lavery@okstate.edu) is Professor of European History in the Department of History at Oklahoma State University and an Adjunct Professor (docent) of Finland's and Scandinavia's Church History at Helsinki University. His most recent book is The History of Finland (2006).

Jeffrey Mankoff (mankoffja@gmail.com) is a Visiting Fellow at the Center for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS). He is the author of Russian Foreign Policy: The Return of Great Power Politics (2009).

Religion and Identity in Russia and the Soviet Union: A Festschrift for Paul Bushkovitch. Nikolaos A. Chrissidis, Cathy J. Potter, David Schimmelpenninck van der Oye, and Jennifer B. Spock, eds. Bloomington, IN: Slavica Publishers, 2011, 265–66.

Michael A. Pesenson (mpesenson@mail.utexas.edu) is Assistant Professor of Slavic and Eurasian Studies at the University of Texas at Austin. He has authored articles on Russian cultural history and literature. He is currently completing a monograph on visions of the apocalypse in Russian literature and culture.

Maria Salomon Arel (msarel@videotron.ca) is an independent scholar and research consultant based in Montreal, where she has worked with, among others, the Centre for Literacy of Quebec. She completed her Ph.D. at Yale University and taught at a number of universities and colleges in Canada and the US.

David Schimmelpenninck van der Oye (dschimme@brocku.ca) is Professor of Russian History at Brock University in St. Catharines, Canada. His books include Toward the Rising Sun: Russian Ideologies of Empire and the Path to War with Japan (2001) and Russian Orientalism: Asia in the Russian Mind from Peter the Great to the Emigration (2010).

Vera Shevzov (vshevzov@smith.edu) is Professor of Religion at Smith College. Her book, Russian Orthodoxy on the Eve of Revolution (2004), was awarded the Frank S. and Elizabeth D. Brewer Prize of the American Society of Church History.

Jennifer B. Spock (jennifer.spock@eku.edu) is Professor, Department of History, Eastern Kentucky University. Her published articles focus on donations to, and instructive literature of, Solovki Monastery, and she is preparing a monograph on Solovki before 1645.

Roshanna P. Sylvest (rsylvest@depaul.edu) is Associate Professor of History at DePaul University in Chicago. She is the author of Tales of Old Odessa: Crime and Civility in a City of Thieves (2005).

Cherie Woodworth (cherie.woodworth@gmail.com) is a Post Doctoral Researcher n independent scholar and Senior Fellow at the Center for Comparative Research at Yale University, and a Center Associate (and alumna), Davis Center for Russian and Eurasian Studies, Harvard University. She has published articles on 15th–16th-century Russia, and authored studies on the cultural and economic symbiosis of steppe and sedentary societies.