

Contents

| | |
|--------------------------------|-------|
| Editor's Introduction | ix |
| Editor's Note | xxvii |
| Donald Thompson in Russia..... | 1 |
| Illustrations | 153 |
| Index | 217 |

Illustrations

| | |
|---|----------|
| Map of Petrograd | Figure 1 |
| Map of Kronstadt and Tsarskoe Selo | Figure 2 |
| Map of the Russian front, 1917 | Figure 3 |
| Just before the Russian Revolution | Figure 4 |
| Demonstration against peace | Figure 5 |
| Gun and ammunition cart | Figure 6 |
| Merry-go-round at the Russian front | Figure 7 |
| Rasputin surrounded by admirers | Figure 8 |
| A bread line in Petrograd | Figure 9 |

| | |
|---|-----------|
| Three generations of Cossacks | Figure 10 |
| Russian front at Riga | Figure 11 |
| Nicolas Romanoff and his son, June, 1917 | Figure 12 |
| Men shooting from a motor | Figure 13 |
| The first red flags on the Nevsky Prospekt, Sunday, March 11, 1917 | Figure 14 |
| Petrograd police station after the Revolution | Figure 15 |
| Half a million people demonstrating on the Nevsky | Figure 16 |
| Street scene in Petrograd | Figure 17 |
| A captured car, Monday night, March 12 | Figure 18 |
| Picking up the dead and wounded after a street fight in Petrograd | Figure 19 |
| Types of Bolsheviks | Figure 20 |
| The Reds of Petrograd | Figure 21 |
| My room at the Hotel Astoria | Figure 22 |
| A deserted prison | Figure 23 |
| Soldiers' and workmen's deputies sitting | Figure 24 |
| A Russian nurse | Figure 25 |
| Women lined up for inspection | Figure 26 |
| Effects of street-fighting during the Revolution | Figure 27 |
| Armored cars in Petrograd | Figure 28 |

| | |
|---|-----------|
| Funeral procession in Petrograd | Figure 29 |
| Catherine Breshkovskaya | Figure 30 |
| Cossack general reviewing Bochkareva's Death Battalion | Figure 31 |
| Sole survivors of an entire regiment after gas attack | Figure 32 |
| Wounded Russian soldiers walking back from the front | Figure 33 |
| Demonstration by loyal Russians | Figure 34 |
| Mobs meeting at the Nevsky and Sadovaia | Figure 35 |
| Trotsky and Lenin | Figure 36 |
| Women making a demonstration against the war | Figure 37 |
| Russian soldiers leaving the front | Figure 38 |
| Russian Cossacks | Figure 39 |
| Kerensky just about to salute regiment passing on its way to the front | Figure 40 |
| Mobs listening to Kerensky near the Russian Admiralty | Figure 41 |
| Mobs on the Field of Mars in Petrograd | Figure 42 |
| Bochkareva and one of the companies of women soldiers | Figure 43 |
| Russian soldiers who had tried to cut this barbed wire of the Germans | Figure 44 |
| Russian soldiers advancing through the grass | Figure 45 |
| Left to right: Bolshevik, German agent, and Kronstadt [sailor] | Figure 46 |
| Russian army on the retreat | Figure 47 |

| | |
|--|-----------|
| Dr. Eugene Hurd, of Seattle, Washington | Figure 48 |
| House used by me at the front | Figure 49 |
| Women who joined the Women's Death Battalion | Figure 50 |
| Blessing of the Women's Death Battalion | Figure 51 |
| Florence Harper and Maria Bochkareva | Figure 52 |
| Bochkareva and Emmeline Pankhurst | Figure 53 |
| Lenin addressing a Petrograd mob, Monday, July 16, 1917 | Figure 54 |
| Emmeline Pankhurst and Bochkareva reviewing Women's Death Battalions | Figure 55 |
| Mutinous soldiers | Figure 56 |
| Russian soldiers abandoning their positions during the great retreat in July 1917 | Figure 57 |
| Lenin's arrival in Petrograd | Figure 58 |
| A Russian Death Battalion | Figure 59 |
| A crowded street tram in Petrograd | Figure 60 |
| Cattle cars were used to haul the wounded in | Figure 61 |
| With my camera in front line trenches on the Dvinsk front | Figure 62 |
| Low bridge on Russian front line | Figure 63 |
| A soldier's funeral | Figure 64 |
| Petrograd mobs | Figure 65 |